6th Annual Craftland Opens on December 1, 2007
Retail Location to Offer Thousands of Handmade Goods

Providence, RI – October 24, 2007 – Craftland, the seasonal retail boutique located in Providence, Rhode Island returns on December 1, 2007 for the holiday season. Craftland is a juried show featuring an eclectic assortment of fine craft and kitschy handmade goods.

The 2007 store will be the largest to-date with goods from more than 150 artists and crafters from Rhode Island and around the country. Stop in to purchase a variety of high-quality and unique goods including: magical stuffed animals and other creatures, handmade books and stationery, unusual jewelry, inventive lamps and other housewares, colorful handbags, limited edition prints and things just too strange and delightful to list. There's always something surprising at Craftland.

With prices from $1 to $150, there are handmade goodies for everyone! Craftland runs from December 1-22, and hours are Wednesday-Sunday 11am- 6pm and Thursdays 11-8pm. You can browse the world of glittery mayhem in beautiful Downtown Providence at 235 Westminster Street, Providence, RI. Admission is free and no sales tax is charged!

An opening night party on Friday November 30th from 5 – 9 PM kicks off the Craftland season.

Gifts purchased at Craftland truly reflect the spirit of the holiday season. Not only do sales support local and national artists, but 5% of our proceeds benefit The Steel Yard and their free arts and training programs for youth.
